The 3rd International

Deaf Academics and Researchers Conference

"What do deaf academics mean for the world?"

August 10–12, 2006

Keynote Speakers

Markku Jokinen is president of the World Federation of the Deaf, an international non-governmental organisation promoting approximately 70 million deaf people's human rights worldwide. He is also a president of the Finnish Association of the Deaf (FAD).

Jokinen is a university teacher and researcher by profession. His current posting is as project coordinator for the teacher training programme for Finnish Sign Language users at the University of Jyväskylä, Finland.

Martina J Bienvenu, chair of Department of ASL and Deaf Studies at Gallaudet, was raised in Baton Rouge, LA. She graduated from Louisiana School for the Deaf. She received her BA in English in 1974 and MA in Linguistics in 1983, both from Gallaudet, and completed her Ph.D. in Linguistics at Union Institute and University in 2003.

Bienvenu has worked in several places, including the National Association of the Deaf and Kendall Demonstration Elementary School as their first Communication Specialist. She is a renowned ASL teacher and presenter on issues related to ASL, Deaf Culture, Bilingual Education for Deaf children, interpretation and oppression/empowerment.

Welcome to Stockholm

The conference theme will be “What do deaf academics mean for the world?” Following on from earlier conferences it is our aim to bring up to discussion the relationship between deaf academic world, deaf world and a hearing academic world. Among other issues, we would like to focus on:

- How can the deaf world derive advantages from deaf researchers or vice versa?
- How do we as deaf academics influence the hearing academic world we also are a part of?
- Can deaf academics, for example, support deaf world?
- What expectations do the deaf community and hearing academics have on deaf academics if any?
